

Relative Clauses

Relative Pronouns

Relative pronouns are used differently to other pronouns.
They introduce a relative clause.

Relative Pronouns

who, which, where, when, whose, that

Relative Pronouns

They can relate the clause to a noun.

Old Deuteronomy, who was sleepy, licked his tail.

Old Deuteronomy licked his tail which he coiled towards him.

Old Deuteronomy, whose tongue was very rough, licked his tail.

Old Deuteronomy licked the bite that the mouse had given him.

Relative Pronouns

who, which, where, when, whose, that

Relative Clauses

Relative clauses can also relate to a whole clause.

The cat caught the canary.

The cat caught the canary,
which annoyed its owner.

This is a clause.

It is not the cat which annoyed the owner. It is the catching of the canary. The relative clause relates to the whole clause.

Spotting Relative Clauses

Relative clauses are a type of subordinate clause.

main clause

subordinate clause

Gumbie slept on the bed which was a very comfortable one.

The main clause is the main part of the sentence. It makes sense by itself.

The subordinate clause adds meaning to the main clause; it has less weight.

When the subordinate clause is a relative clause, it adds meaning to a noun in the main clause or to the whole main clause.

Identify the main clause and relative clause in each sentence.

Which noun is the relative clause relating to?

Punctuating Relative Clauses

When the relative clause comes after the main clause, we do not usually separate the clauses with a comma.

main clause

subordinate clause

Old Deuteronomy ignored the noise which was coming towards him.

A comma would create an unnecessary break in the sentence.

Punctuating Embedded Relative Clauses

Sometimes the relative clause is embedded in the main clause.

main clause

The mice ate the cheese.

Tell me more about The mice.

The relative clause needs to be next to the noun: the mice.

Punctuating Embedded Relative Clauses

Sometimes the relative clause is embedded in the main clause.

main clause

The mice

main clause

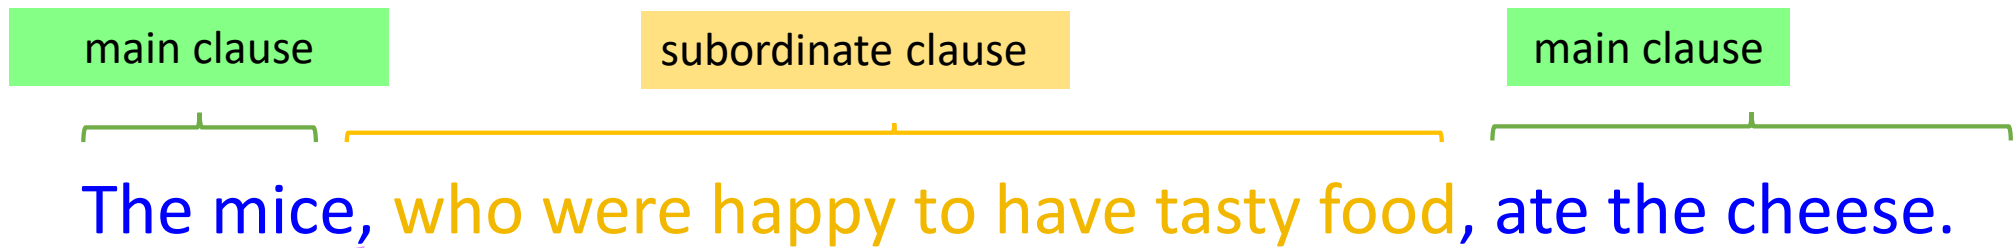

ate the cheese.

Tell me more about the mice.

The main clause splits to make space...

Punctuating Embedded Relative Clauses

Sometimes the relative clause is embedded in the main clause.

Commas separate the clauses because the relative clause breaks up the main clause.

Tell me more about the mice.

The main clause splits to make space...
for the relative clause.

Embedding Relative Clauses

main clause

Gumbie slept on the papers.

The dog skirted around Old Deuteronomy.

The bed looked tempting to the cat.

The mouse ate all the cheese and bacon.

*Read these main clauses.
Embed a relative clause to say more about the noun.
Remember to use commas.*

What meaning did you add to the clauses?
