IMPORTANT Parent or Carer – Read this page with your child and check that you are happy with what they have to do and any weblinks or use of internet.

1. Read the Reading Booklet

- Read Potions and Alchemy; The Prince's Tale and Dumbledore's Giant Mistake.
- Now read again and make pencil marks on the text to show any parts that you think will be important.

2. Read the first set of questions – Potions and Alchemy.

- Read all the questions, thinking about the answers as you do.
- Now write answers to these questions, checking in the booklet and writing as clearly as you can.

3. Read the second set of questions – The Prince's Tale

- Read the questions and think about your answers before writing them.
- Check in the booklet as you go.

4. Challenge yourself to answer the questions about Dumbledore's Giant Mistake

Well done! That's a lot of reading and thinking! Now check your answers with a grown-up.

Potions and Alchemy

Students of Alchemy are usually interested in three things: finding the Philosopher's Stone; discovering the key to everlasting youth; and unearthing the secret behind changing the properties of metal into gold or silver. But to truly understand the science of alchemy, first you must understand the art of potions.

People have been making potions for thousands upon thousands of years. The word potion is taken from the Latin word potio, which means 'drink'. Potions can be used for many reasons but they are often used as medicines, poisons or drugs. Although not all potions are successful, this has not stopped people attempting to create them. Potions to heal broken bones, potions to make you reveal the truth, potions to make someone fall deeply in love – people will try a magical mixture for just about everything and anything.

A Puzzling Professor

Although Professor Snape is described as being 'disliked by everybody' in the early stages of Harry's time at Hogwarts, we later discover that appearances can often be deceptive. As Snape's own personal story unravels he is cast in a different light, which allows us to re-examine his previous actions in a different way.

Professor Severus Snape Professor of Potions

APPEARANCE: Professor Snape is described as having greasy black hair, a hooked nose and sallow skin. His eyes are said to be black, cold and empty.

DID YOU KNOW: Marauders Moony, Wormtail, Padfoot and Prongs had a nickname for Professor Snape when they were students together at Hogwarts – Snivellus.

Potions Class

Potions is one of several subjects compulsory for all Hogwarts students. This picture shows the image of a Potions master and his students. It is from the first printed encyclopaedia of natural history (Ortus Sanitatis), featuring plants, animals, birds, fish and stones. In this image the Potions master is clutching a stick in his left hand, while his assistant is holding open a book of recipes. It is questionable how much attention some of the pupils are paying to their teacher.

ACTIVITY

Potion Making

The art of potion making can take several years to perfect. However, you can have a go at concocting some potions without attending a single Potions class.

TO MAKE A SWIRLING, IRIDESCENT POTION that you can drink, add a few drops of food colouring (any colour you like) to a glass of lemonade, add a little edible gold sparkle powders (for decorating cakes) and stir well. Let it settle and it will be a clear, coloured potion. But when you stir it, the gold will swirl around, making it look as though the potion is magical.

TO MAKE A COLOUR-CHANGING POTION, chop up some red cabbage and put it in a bowl. Next, ask an adult to help you cover it with hot water and leave for 15 minutes. Then pour the mixture through a sieve and keep the liquid. You will be left with a purple potion. To change the colour, add lemon juice or vinegar to turn it red, or bicarbonate of soda to turn it green or blue. Put a spoonful of the original potion in a glass and watch it turn red as you top it up with lemonade. You can drink this – and it won't even taste of cabbage!

Jacob Meydenbach, Ortus Sanitatis, 1491

Taken and adapted from Harry Potter: A Journey Through a History of Magic Bloomsbury (pp.16-19)

In this extract from Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows, Harry uses a pensieve to watch one of Snape's childhood memories.

The Prince's Tale

Harry saw that he was in a nearly deserted playground. A single, huge chimney dominated the distant skyline. Two girls were swinging backward and forward, and a skinny boy was watching them from behind a clump of bushes. His black hair was overlong and his clothes were so mismatched that it looked deliberate: too-short jeans, a shabby, overlarge coat that might have belonged to a grown man, an odd smock-like shirt.

Harry moved closer to the boy. Snape looked no more than nine or ten years old, sallow, small, stringy. There was undisguised greed in his thin face as he watched the younger of the two girls swinging higher and higher than her sister.

"Lily, don't do it!" shrieked the elder of the two.

But the girl had let go of the swing at the very height of its arc and flown into the air, quite literally flown, launched herself skyward with a great shout of laughter, and instead of crumpling on the playground asphalt, she soared like a trapeze artist through the air, staying up far too long, landing far too lightly.

"Mummy told you not to!"

Petunia stopped her swing by dragging the heels of her sandals on the ground, making a crunching, grinding sound, then leapt up, hands on hips.

"Mummy said you weren't allowed, Lily!"

"But I'm fine," said Lily, still giggling. "Tuney, look at this. Watch what I can do."

Petunia glanced around. The playground was deserted apart from themselves and, though the girls did not know it, Snape. Lily had picked up a fallen flower from the bush behind which Snape lurked. Petunia advanced, evidently torn between curiosity and disapproval. Lily waited until Petunia was near enough to have a clear view, then held out her palm. The flower sat there, opening and closing its petals, like some bizarre, many-lipped oyster.

"Stop it!" shrieked Petunia.

"It's not hurting you," said Lily, but she closed her hand on the blossom and threw it back to the ground.

"It's not right," said Petunia, but her eyes had followed the flower's flight to the ground and lingered upon it. "How do you do it?" she added, and there was definite longing in her voice.

"It's obvious, isn't it?" Snape could no longer contain himself, but had jumped out from behind the bushes. Petunia shrieked and ran backward toward the swings, but Lily, though clearly startled, remained where she was. Snape seemed to regret his appearance. A dull flush of colour mounted the sallow cheeks as he looked at Lily.

"What's obvious?" asked Lily.

Snape had an air of nervous excitement. With a glance at the distant Petunia, now hovering beside the swings, he lowered his voice and said, "I know what you are."

"What do you mean?"

"You're...you're a witch," whispered Snape.

She looked affronted. "That's not a very nice thing to say to somebody!"

She turned, nose in the air, and marched off toward her sister.

"You are," said Snape to Lily. "You are a witch. I've been watching you for a while. But there's nothing wrong with that. My mum's one, and I'm a wizard."

Petunia's laugh was like cold water.

"Wizard!" she shrieked, her courage returned now that she had recovered from the shock of his unexpected appearance. "I know who you are. You're that Snape boy! They live down Spinner's End by the river," she told Lily, and it was evident from her tone that she considered the address a poor recommendation. "Why have you been spying on us?"

"Haven't been spying," said Snape, hot and uncomfortable and dirty-haired in the bright sunlight. "Wouldn't spy on you, anyway," he added spitefully, "you're a Muggle."

Though Petunia evidently did not understand the word, she could hardly mistake the tone.

"Lily, come on, we're leaving!" she said shrilly. Lily obeyed her sister at once, glaring at Snape as she left. He stood watching them as they marched through the playground gate, and Harry, the only one left to observe him, recognised Snape's bitter disappointment, and understood that Snape had been planning this moment for a while, and that it had all gone wrong...

DUMBLEDORE'S GIANT MISTAKE

Albus Dumbledore, eccentric Headmaster of Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry, has never been afraid to make controversial staff appointments, writes Rita Skeeter, Special Correspondent.

In September of this year, he hired Alastor "Mad-Eye" Moody, the notoriously jinx-happy ex-Auror, to teach Defence Against the Dark Arts, a decision that caused many raised eyebrows at the Ministry of Magic, given Moody's well-known habit of attacking anybody who makes a sudden movement in his presence.

Mad-Eye Moody, however, looks responsible and kindly when set beside the part-human Dumbledore employs to teach Care of Magical Creatures. Rubeus Hagrid, who admits to being expelled from Hogwarts in his third year, has enjoyed the position of Gamekeeper at the school ever since, a job secured for him by Dumbledore. Last year, however, Hagrid used his mysterious influence over the headmaster to secure the additional post of Care of Magical Creatures teacher, over the heads of many better-qualified candidates. An alarming large and ferocious-looking man, Hagrid has been using his new-found authority to terrify the students in his care with a succession of horrific creatures. While Dumbledore turns a blind eye, Hagrid has maimed several pupils during a series of lessons which many admit to being "very frightening."

"I was attacked by a hippogriff, and my friend Vincent Crabbe got a bad bite off a Flobberworm," says Draco Malfoy, a fourth-year student. "We all hate Hagrid, but we're just too scared to say anything."

Hagrid has no intention of ceasing his campaign of intimidation, however. In conversation with a Daily Prophet reporter last month, he admitted breeding creatures he has dubbed "Blast-Ended Skrewts," highly dangerous crosses between manticores and fire crabs. The creation of new breeds of magical creature is, of course, an activity usually closely observed by the Department for the Regulation and Control of Magical Creatures. Hagrid, it seems, considers himself to be above such petty restrictions.

"I was just having some fun," he says, before hastily changing the subject. As if this were not enough, the Daily Prophet has now unearthed evidence that Hagrid is not – as he has always pretended – a pure-blood wizard. He is not, in fact, even pure human. His mother, we can exclusively reveal, is none other than the giantess Fridwulfa, whose whereabouts are currently unknown.

Bloodthirsty and brutal, the giants brought themselves to the point of extinction by warring amongst themselves during the last century. If his antics during Care of Magical Creatures lessons are any guide, however, Fridwulfa's son appears to have inherited her brutal nature. In a bizarre twist, Hagrid is reputed to have developed a close friendship with the boy who brought around You-Know-Who's fall from power—thereby driving Hagrid's own mother, like the rest of You-Know-Who's supporters, into hiding. Perhaps Harry Potter is unaware of this unpleasant truth about his large friend --- but Albus Dumbledore surely has a duty to ensure that Harry Potter, along with his fellow students, is warned about the dangers of associating with half-giants.

	Tick one .
He is very hungry.	<input type="checkbox"/>
He wants to be friends with Lily.	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
He wants to play on the swing.	<input type="checkbox"/>
He wants to talk to Petunia.	<input type="checkbox"/>
17	Look at the paragraph beginning: But the girl had let go of the swing... Name two things that are unusual about Lily's movement from the swing. 1. She didn't crumple on the playground. /landed too lightly 2. She soared like a trapeze artist/stayed in the air too long	1 point

18	Why do you think that Petunia ‘glanced around’ when Lily came off the swing? Explain your answer. In case anyone had seen her. / Her Mummy had said not to. / She might be in trouble if anyone had seen her.	1 point
19	Find evidence in the text that Petunia feels opposing emotions about Lily’s magic. Include words from the text in your explanation. Petunia is against magic: she disapproves as ‘Mummy said you weren’t allowed’. Any other examples where Petunia criticises Lily’s magical powers. Petunia is in favour of magic: she is curious and there is definite longing in her voice. / Her eyes linger on the flower.	1 point
20	With a glance at the distant Petunia, now hovering beside the swings, he lowered his voice and said, “I know what you are.” “What do you mean?” “You’re...you’re a witch,” whispered Snape. In what ways can we tell that this is a significant moment for Snape? Give two clues from the text. He could no longer contain himself or he was nervous/excited. He had been planning this moment for a while.	1 point
21	She looked affronted. “That’s not a very nice thing to say to somebody!” What does the word affronted mean in this context? Insulted	1 point

22	“You are,” said Snape to Lily. “You are a witch. I’ve been watching you for a while. But there’s nothing wrong with that. My mum’s one, and I’m a wizard.” Petunia’s laugh was like cold water. In what way was Petunia’s laugh like cold water? It made Snape realise she wasn’t interested. / Some reference to the simile – it woke him from his dream of being friends, it shocked him (like cold water) or reference to the idiom ‘To throw cold water...’ to belittle/ be discouraging	1 point
23	Harry notices Snape’s ‘bitter disappointment’ when Lily marches away. Why might he be disappointed? What do you think he was hoping would have happened? Explain your answer, using examples from the text. His plans had all gone wrong. Instead of becoming friends and sharing their magic knowledge, Snape and Lily had exchanged insults, he had called her sister a ‘muggle’ after she had sneered at his family’s address.	1 point
24	Number the following events 1– 5 to show the order in which they happened. The first one has been done for you. <table border="1" data-bbox="225 1227 1396 1675"> <tr> <td data-bbox="225 1227 1214 1317">Lily picks up a flower.</td> <td data-bbox="1214 1227 1396 1317">2</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="225 1317 1214 1406">Petunia runs away.</td> <td data-bbox="1214 1317 1396 1406">3</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="225 1406 1214 1496">Snape speaks to Lily.</td> <td data-bbox="1214 1406 1396 1496">4</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="225 1496 1214 1585">Lily jumps off a swing.</td> <td data-bbox="1214 1496 1396 1585">1</td> </tr> <tr> <td data-bbox="225 1585 1214 1675">Petunia recognises Snape.</td> <td data-bbox="1214 1585 1396 1675">5</td> </tr> </table>	Lily picks up a flower.	2	Petunia runs away.	3	Snape speaks to Lily.	4	Lily jumps off a swing.	1	Petunia recognises Snape.	5	1 point
